“The Board approved WFP Gender Policy (WFP/EB.1/2009/5-A/Rev.1) and [...] invited the Secretariat to present to the Board a time-bound corporate action plan with realistic and measurable targets providing details of the institutional measures to support gender mainstreaming, including resource requirements.”

Board decision 2009/EB.1/3

BACKGROUND

1. WFP’s new gender policy, “Promoting Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women in Addressing Food and Nutrition Challenges”, sets out the framework for the continued mainstreaming of gender into WFP’s policies, operational processes and programmes, at all levels.¹
2. The policy outlines institutional support measures that are essential for mainstreaming gender into WFP operations and consistent with main elements of the United Nations system-wide policy and strategy on gender mainstreaming (CEB/2006/2).

➤ Capacity development

- ◇ WFP will ensure that staff members develop the capacity to mainstream gender into their work, including gender analysis.
- ◇ As part of United Nations country teams (UNCTs) and through its involvement in Poverty Reduction Strategy (PRS) processes, WFP will advocate for and support governments and cooperating partners in strengthening their capacity to incorporate a gender perspective into national food and nutrition plans, policies and programmes.

➤ Accountability

- ◇ WFP will improve its accountability systems and review and revise its accountability tools to incorporate a gender perspective, promote accountability for gender mainstreaming among its partners, and strengthen its monitoring and evaluation systems to measure and report on progress in gender mainstreaming, including tracking and reporting on gender-related allocations and expenditure.²

➤ Partnerships, advocacy and research

- ◇ WFP will work with its partners to raise awareness of the importance of promoting gender equality and empowering women to achieve sustainable food and nutrition security, develop a communications and advocacy strategy on gender, and transform the gender focal points network into an advocacy network.
- ◇ WFP will collaborate with academic institutions on research to improve its policies and programmes and with partners to assess the impact of its interventions.
- ◇ WFP will continue to strengthen partnerships at all levels, including work at the inter-agency level to address gender issues and promote knowledge sharing.

Report of the Secretary-General on Peacebuilding in the Immediate Aftermath of Conflict. A/63/881-S/2009/304, 11 June 2009.

- ◇ WFP will work with partners to mobilize complementary resources, including expertise.
- Gender mainstreaming in operations
 - ◇ WFP will make it mandatory to incorporate a gender perspective into operations at all stages of a project cycle and will revise its assessment and evaluation tools to support this process.
 - ◇ WFP will mobilize resources for the Gender Innovations Fund³ for supporting country office implementation of innovative activities that promote gender equality and the empowerment of women.
 - ◇ WFP will launch a gender-friendly/sensitive country office initiative,⁴ which will recognize country offices for compliance with measures set out in the policy.
- 3. The policy also defines programming priorities. These consist of targeted actions for women, as in the previous policy,⁵ and new priorities for addressing gaps and emerging challenges.
- 4. Targeted actions for women and girls are to continue. They will:
 - provide food assistance for pregnant and lactating women, children under 5, and adolescent girls;
 - give women access to and control over WFP food assistance by making them the holders of food entitlements, taking the local context into consideration;
 - facilitate women's participation in food distribution committees and other decision-making bodies related to food and nutrition security; and
 - improve girls' access to education and reduce the gender gap in education, using take-home rations (THRs) as an incentive.
- 5. The following are the new programming priorities, which WFP will implement in selected countries. In collaboration with its partners, WFP will measure and document the results and impacts as described below.

³ The Gender Innovations Fund has been created to motivate and support country offices to develop innovative context-based gender projects that contribute to the outcomes of the gender policy and Corporate Action Plan. The fund will be managed by the Grants Management Unit under the Resource Management and Accountability Department. Proposals from country offices will be reviewed by the Grants Committee on the basis of criteria provided by the Policy, Planning and Strategy Division. Proposals must be appropriate to the context, innovative and based on gender analysis. They could include, for example, innovative ways of addressing violence against women during WFP food distributions or of reducing the burden on women related to food distribution by mobilizing men to collect food or engaging communities to provide transport for food.

⁴ This initiative recognizes country offices that comply with the gender policy. Designation as gender-friendly/sensitive will be based on criteria that measure, for example: i) the country director's championing of gender equality and the empowerment of women; ii) collection, analysis and use of sex-disaggregated data; iii) development of staff capacity on gender; iv) mainstreaming of gender into all projects; v) progress towards a gender balance in staffing; vi) budget for gender; and vii) compliance with food distribution guidelines to reduce the burden on women and improve their safety. Training in gender audit will help country offices to carry out self-assessments, and a method for carrying out assessments that lead to designation will be determined in consultation with regional bureaux and country offices.

⁵ "WFP Gender Policy (2003–2007): Enhanced Commitments to Women to Ensure Food Security" (WFP/EB.3/2002/4-A).

- Addressing gender-related protection challenges
 - ◇ WFP will continue to promote the protection of its target population and staff members.
 - ◇ WFP will work to prevent violence against women, girls and children in its operations; in complex emergencies it will seek to reduce the burden on and improve the safety of women and girls in camps. As one means of achieving this, WFP will mobilize resources to provide fuel alternatives and assist the creation of protection strategies for displaced women and girls.
- Integrating a gender perspective into HIV and AIDS programmes
 - ◇ WFP will continue to support inter-agency responses to HIV by using its food assistance for prevention, mitigation, treatment, support and caregiving activities, ensuring that a gender dimension is integrated into responses.
- Improving mother-and-child health and nutrition (MCHN) programmes
 - ◇ WFP will promote the engagement of men and boys in MCHN programmes.
- Improving gender equality through WFP-supported school feeding
 - ◇ WFP will use its school feeding programmes as an entry point for promoting gender equality during children's formative years, using innovative advocacy and learning methods.
- Promoting positive gender relations and supporting sustainable livelihoods
 - ◇ WFP will use its food assistance to promote positive gender relations and support sustainable livelihoods and will implement a robust monitoring system to ensure that women and men participate in and benefit equally from food-for-training (FFT) and food-for-work (FFW) activities, cash transfer and voucher programmes, cash for work, and Purchase for Progress (P4P) projects.

PURPOSE AND SCOPE OF THE ACTION PLAN

6. The Corporate Action Plan is the operational tool for the WFP gender policy. The plan covers both the normative and the operational functions of WFP, and translates the gender policy into actions with verifiable indicators and targets, assigns responsibilities and indicates resource requirements.
7. The Plan contributes to achievement of WFP's five Strategic Objectives and complements the WFP Strategic Results Framework⁶ with a common monitoring and evaluation cycle, recommended for optimizing costs.
8. The Plan supports regional bureaux and country offices in the process of incorporating measurable, context-based gender actions based on gender analysis into their work plans.

⁶ Gender-sensitive indicators already in the Strategic Results Framework are not duplicated in the Gender Action Plan.

TIME FRAME

9. This Corporate Action Plan covers the period January 2010 to December 2011, which coincides with the time frame of WFP's biennial Management Plan (2010-2011). It will be evaluated and updated every two years.

MAIN PRIORITIES FOR 2010–2011

10. The main priorities for 2010–2011 are the following:⁷
- i) increasing knowledge and capacity among staff to carry out gender analysis and incorporate a gender perspective into policies, programmes and projects;
 - ii) establishing an accountability framework to ensure adequate gender mainstreaming, supported by adequate corporate tracking and reporting mechanisms;
 - iii) promoting and strengthening partnerships at all levels for implementation of the policy;
 - iv) advocating for gender equality and the empowerment of women in the context of food and nutrition security, including the engagement of men and boys;
 - v) continuing the implementation of targeted actions for women and girls, with country offices establishing targets based on gender analysis, and aiming for equitable participation, taking the local context into account; and
 - vi) piloting the new programming priorities in WFP partner countries, in collaboration with partners, and measuring results, outcomes and impacts.

INSTITUTIONAL MECHANISMS FOR IMPLEMENTING THE GENDER ACTION PLAN

11. The gender policy implies a shift from the use of gender focal points to system-wide responsibility and accountability for implementing the policy.
12. Senior management will provide the leadership for implementing the policy. It will advocate for gender equality and the empowerment of women in all policy statements within their respective portfolios.⁸ Management will make a financial commitment to supporting gender activities at the country level and will seek extra-budgetary funding to establish a Gender Innovations Fund to help country offices develop and implement gender initiatives.⁹
13. Presentations by Regional Directors to Board sessions will detail progress in implementation of the gender policy. Managers at Headquarters and in the field will be responsible for incorporating gender into their respective work plans, programmes and projects and into policy dialogue with partners, including host governments.

⁸ These include Operations, Resource Management and Accountability, External Relations, and Hunger Solutions.

14. The Women, Children and Gender section of the Policy, Planning and Strategy Division will be responsible for coordinating implementation of the gender policy and providing the necessary guidance and support to Headquarters, regional bureaux and country offices.

ANNEX II

GENDER TERMINOLOGY

Gender refers to the social attributes and opportunities associated with being male or female, the relationships between women and men and girls and boys, and the relations between women and those between men. These attributes, opportunities and relationships are socially constructed and are learned through socialization processes. They are context/time-specific and changeable. Gender determines what is expected, allowed and valued in a woman or a man in a given context. In most societies there are differences and inequalities between women and men in responsibilities assigned, activities undertaken, access to and control over resources, as well as decision-making opportunities. Gender is part of the broader socio-cultural context. (*United Nations Office of the Special Adviser on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women – OSAGI*¹)

Gender analysis is the examination of a social process which considers the roles played by women and men, including issues such as the division of labour, productive and reproductive activities, access to and control over resources and benefits, and socio-economic and environmental factors that influence women and men. Gender analysis also refers to the systematic investigation of the differential impacts of development on women and men. (Inter-Agency Standing Committee 2006. Gender Handbook in Humanitarian Action. Geneva)

Mainstreaming a gender perspective is the process of assessing the implications for women and men of any planned action [...] in all areas and at all levels. It is a strategy for making women's as well as men's concerns and experiences an integral dimension of [...] policies and programmes [...] so that women and men benefit equally and inequality is not perpetuated. The ultimate goal is to achieve gender equality. (Report of the Economic and Social Council A/52/3/Rev.1)

Gender equality refers to the equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities of women and men and girls and boys. Equality does not mean that women and men will become the same but that women's and men's rights, responsibilities and opportunities will not depend on whether they are born male or female. Gender equality implies that the interests, needs and priorities of both women and men are taken into consideration [...] Equality between women and men is seen both as a human rights issue and as a precondition for, and indicator of, sustainable people-centred development (*OSAGI*¹)

The empowerment of women: concerns women gaining power and control over their own lives. It involves awareness-raising, building self-confidence, expansion of choices, increased access to and control over resources and actions to transform the structures and institutions which reinforce and perpetuate gender discrimination and inequality. The process of empowerment is as important as the goal. Empowerment comes from within [...] Inputs to promote the empowerment of women should facilitate women's articulation of their needs and priorities and a more active role in promoting these interests and needs. Empowerment of women cannot be achieved in a vacuum; men must be brought along in the process of change [...] (*OSAGI*²)

Targeted actions [...] should compensate for the consequences of gender-based inequality such as the long-term deprivation of rights to education or health care. This is important as in many situations women and girls are more disadvantaged than men and boys [...] but there are a number of situations where boys or men will be targeted for action, for example when boys are the target of recruitment for armed conflict [...] (Inter-Agency Standing Committee, 2006. Gender Handbook in Humanitarian Action. Geneva, p. 3.)

ANNEX III

LINKING WFP'S STRATEGIC PLAN AND THE GENDER POLICY

Strategic Objective 1: Save Lives and Protect Livelihoods in Emergencies

1. Women, men, girls and boys are all affected by emergencies, but there are differences in their vulnerabilities, responses and coping mechanisms. The immediate reaction in emergencies is to save lives, but humanitarian interventions must nevertheless be carried out with gender sensitivity that recognizes these differences and allows the different needs and priorities of women, men, girls and boys to be addressed more effectively.
2. Gender gaps also tend to be accentuated during humanitarian crises, with women often assuming the role of head of household while facing increased threats of physical violence and abuse.
3. WFP assessment tools should be gender-sensitive to capture the different needs and priorities of women and men. WFP staff should have the capacity to carry out gender analysis to be better able to respond to these different needs.
4. In emergency situations, WFP assistance should be analysed in terms of its impact on the vulnerability of women, men, boys and girls, with appropriate measures put in place to reduce risks where they exist. An example is women going outside of the camp areas to seek firewood and water in order to prepare food and being put at risk of rape and other forms of violence.
5. Programmes for the prevention of gender-based violence in the context of emergencies should be designed along the lifecycle as there are indications of violence against girls and boys as well as against female elders, widows and orphans. The involvement of men should be regarded as part of the solution rather than just the problem.

Strategic Objective 2: Prevent Acute Hunger and Invest in Disaster Preparedness and Mitigation Measures

6. WFP's disaster preparedness and mitigation actions are geared towards strengthening governments' preparedness and response capacities and building communities' resilience to shocks. The integration of gender into vulnerability assessments and early warning systems is vital for enhancing efforts to promote the safety of women, their families and communities. Equally important is the effective participation of both women and men in decision-making and the planning and implementation of programme activities designed to enhance communities' adaptability and response to disasters.

Strategic Objective 3: Restore and Rebuild Lives and Livelihoods in Post-Conflict, Post-Disaster or Transition Situations

7. After a crisis, the livelihood strategies of women and men may change, making it necessary to assess the new division of tasks to ensure food security and nutritional well-being for the household. Livelihood interventions should be designed to strengthen the capacities of women and men, taking into consideration the differences in their access to and control over resources.

8. In post-conflict situations, gender sensitivity is crucial in ensuring that both women and men participate in and benefit equally from activities designed to build capacity and create assets.
9. Designing FFT and FFW activities with a gender dimension means considering not only the different needs and priorities of women and men, but also the impact of the activities in terms of benefits for women and men, while assessing and taking into consideration differences regarding the implications on their time, workloads – including child care activities – and safety.
10. All tools employed during this transition phase, such as voucher and cash-based programmes, should be carefully monitored to ensure that women benefit in terms of access to food, as the main objective of the tool. Sex-disaggregated data should be accompanied by qualitative data to ascertain that women are actually benefiting from WFP assistance.

Strategic Objective 4: Reduce Chronic Hunger and Undernutrition

11. The gender dimensions of the causes and consequences of hunger and malnutrition include how hunger and malnutrition affect women, men, boys and girls differently. The consequences are also different, with women's nutrition status having far-reaching consequences on future generations. Nutrition education is traditionally provided mostly to women, but chronic hunger and undernutrition can only be reduced if communities – particularly men – are also made aware of the importance of adequate maternal and child nutrition.
12. WFP MCHN programmes can be used to break the traditional gender barriers in caregiving by including men and boys in nutrition and health education activities. Equality in access to knowledge and information, for women and men, girls and boys, on the causes, consequences and prevention of maternal and child undernutrition may result in more positive impacts.
13. WFP's access to children through its school feeding programme provides opportunities for promoting gender equality and the empowerment of women and communicating their importance for development. WFP school feeding programmes are important for reducing the gender gap in education through THRs for girls, and can also be used as an entry point to raise children's awareness of the importance of giving equal opportunities to both girls and boys.

Strategic Objective 5: Strengthen the Capacities of Countries to Reduce Hunger, Including Through Hand-Over Strategies and Local Purchase

14. WFP's capacity-building strategies should support partner countries to adopt and implement policies that promote the equal participation of women and men in all processes and decisions that affect their well-being and that of their families. This should include raising awareness on women's critical role in the fight to end hunger.
15. WFP, as part of the United Nations country teams and through its involvement in PRS processes, is well positioned to collaborate with national gender approaches to address gender issues in a culturally sensitive manner and to advocate for the development of local capacities.
16. WFP programmes supporting local purchase from small farm-holders will incorporate a gender perspective in their approach, recognizing the inequality between women and men in accessing farming inputs, technology, credit, transport, markets and returns.
