The State of Global Malnutrition

Malnutrition in all its forms is large-scale and universal

49 million
children are wasted

149 million
children are stunted

1.5 billion
people are affected by one of more forms of micronutrient deficiency

672 million
adults are obese

40 million
children are overweight

Undernutrition, overweight and obesity coexist in many countries

WFP's Nutrition Policy 2017-2021

Implementing the Nutrition Policy

Based on the CSPs and Regional priorities, the implementation plan includes four focus areas:

Improving Management of Acute Malnutrition

Preventing Stunting

Working in Partnership with National Governments

Working on Nutrition in Partnership at all levels

WFP Nutrition Global Reach in 2018

- 59 countries where WFP implements nutrition programmes
- 47% increase of nutrition beneficiaries between 2013-2018
- 86% of WFP Nutrition beneficiaries live in an emergency context

Nutrition Policy - Priority 1: Treatment and Prevention of Moderate Acute Malnutrition (MAM)

Prevent as many cases of Acute Malnutrition as possible from falling into Severe Acute Malnutrition, while Improving Treatment

Nutrition Policy - Priority 2: Prevention of Stunting

Nutrition Policy - Priority 3: Working in Partnership with National Governments

Welcome to nut<sup>x</sup> - WFP Nutrition's learning portal

Investing in nutrition is investing in the future! To share our lessons learned and experience will help us all to become better partners in fighting malnutrition.

In nut<sup>x</sup>, you will find lessons learned in our case studies section and the e-learning courses on nutrition that we made for our staff. You will gain insights on WFP's work on nutrition, but more importantly we hope that this information and content will help you in your development work on nutrition!

A young child in a striped shirt peeks out from a doorway of a building with corrugated metal shutters. The child is looking towards the camera. The building's exterior is made of reddish-brown earth. The shutters are light blue and show signs of wear and rust. A large, semi-transparent purple circle is overlaid on the right side of the image, containing white text.
